The Great War Series

By MAJOR SHERMAN CROCKETT

The disastrous battle raging in Europe between Germany and Austria on the one side and the Allied countries on the other, has created great demand for literature on the subject. The American public to a large extent is ignorant of the exact locations of the fighting zones, with its small towns and villages. Major Crockett, who is familiar with the present battle-fields, has undertaken to place before the American boy an interesting Series of War Stories, written in a delightfully fascinating manner. ALLEN, EMMA S.

The House of Gladness. A plea for the education of girls along more useful lines to make them more than ornamental members of society. The charming heroine is without a moment's notice thrown penniless upon an unsympathetic world, where after almost losing her life in the struggle, she is finally taken in as a member of the family in the "House of Gladness." The charm of the life of this interesting circle is well depicted, and one is inspired and encouraged by the joyousness and true helpfulness of every member of the household. The cult of happiness is taught in every page of the story. 12mo. Illustrated. (Weight, 22 ozs.) $1.25

AMERICAN CRISIS BIOGRAPHIES, THE

Edited by Ellis Paxson Oberholtzer, Ph.D., with the counsel and advice of Prof. John B. McMaster, of the University of Pennsylvania.

This is the first serious attempt ever made to provide an adequate, accurate and unbiased history of the Great Civil War with its causes and effects.

Including the biographies of twenty of the leading men who figured prominently in the period preceding the war, actively in the war and during the reconstruction period, it is as well an illuminating history of the American people from 1840 to 1870.

The biographies are divided equally between the North and the South, and the fact that the writers selected are authorities belonging to the younger generation secures for their work freedom from any war-time prejudice.

"This series of biographies is the most ambitious attempt ever made to collect in one series the lives of the men who led the United States through the greatest crisis in the Country's history."—The Philadelphia Public Ledger.

CHAMBERS, REV. ARTHUR

Man and the Spiritual World. A companion volume to "Our Life After Death," and, in a way, supplementary to it. It seems impossible to read it without interest and profit. 12mo. (Weight, 18 ozs.) $1.00

Our Life After Death. The substance of this book is the theory (based on Scriptural authority entirely) of a life in Hades, between the earth life and that of heaven or hell, including belief in the development of the soul in the intermediate life, and teaching that the gospel is preached here, with the consequent permission of the hope that it is not preached in vain. (Weight, 12 ozs.) 25 cents.

CULLISON, IRENE M.

Mother Goose Finger Plays. This is a clever adaptation of Mother Goose rhymes to meet the need of the little one who is just learning about a wonderful being-himself. The rhymes are of real educational value because they consist of definite words and ideas which the children first need to learn; they are jingles and therefore are easily memorized; they are jolly and therefore are enjoyable. By means of many photographs of actual hands at play, the mother is shown how she may, with her own fingers and those of her baby, work out little dramas with the Mother Goose rhymes. Thin-quarto. Boards. Illustrated. (Weight, 15 ozs.) 60 cents.

CULLUM, RIDGWELL

The Law Breakers. A tale of suspense and mystery the scene of which is laid in a secluded valley in Western Canada. There is every evidence to show that "whisky running" is being carried on in the valley and several persons are suspected of being implicated, yet in spite of the vigilance of the mounted police of the district, in spite of many a trap set to catch the culprits, they continue to elude capture. At last, to Stanley Fyles, who has never been known to fail in any assignment, is delegated the task of tracking down and capturing the head of the whisky gang. The story of his repeated attempts, his many disappointments, and his final success, through all of which the romance of his life was being woven, makes a tale of thrilling adventure, intense suspense, and totally unexpected action. Not until the final chapter is the mystery solved, and not until the final chapter is the love story completed. 12mo. Illustrated. (Weight, 22 ozs.) $1.35

The Night-Riders. The scene is a western cattle ranch with a thrilling plot that swings along with a singleness of purpose never even approached in Mr. Cullum's previous stories. Without break or digression the intense action sweeps the reader along powerless to resist. Reader and hero are whirled to the solution of a mystery which has baffled and terrorized the cattle owners for years. 12mo. Illustrated. (Weight, 26 ozs.) $1.25

The One-Way Trail. A story of the rolling prairies, in which men and women live a life of intense vigor and excitement. The action centers around a little mongrel village, with its curious mingling of good and bad elements, in which is worked out a tremendously dramatic story of a girl who makes a foolish choice and suffers for it. 12mo. Illustrated. (Weight, 26 ozs.) $1.25

The Sheriff of Dyke Hole. A powerful story of the untamed forces on the borders of civilization. The Sheriff is a new character in fiction. He typifies physical strength, absolute fearlessness, unrelenting bitterness toward the coward and the sneak; yet equally does he stand for genial friendliness, good fellowship, loving protection of the weak and defenseless. 12mo. Illustrated. (Weight, 26 ozs.) $1.25

The Trail of the Axe. This is a breezy Western story, full of energy, fresh air and men and women who do things. Through it all runs the sweet and tender love story of Betty and Dave—Betty, the piquant, vivacious, altogether charming little school teacher; Dave, the big, muscular, determined, but tender-hearted lumberman. 12mo. Illustrated. (Weight, 26 ozs.) $1.25

The Twins of Suffering Creek. A big story of a Montana mining camp, in which the friendship between men and a man's love for helpless children bear a large part. It is full of the action which is characteristic of the tense life that these rough men lead, and yet there is all through the story the pathetic simple romance of Scipio, and the delicious humor furnished by the twins and by the miners' well-meant but inexperienced efforts to care for them. 12mo. Illustrated. (Weight, 26 ozs.) $1.25

The Watchers of the Plains. A story of Dakota in the 70's, depicting one of the Indian uprisings that were so frequent and so terrible in those early years. Rosebud, the heroine of the tale, is an English heiress who has been stolen by the Indians of the Rosebud Reservation, from whom she is rescued while still a mere child by the strong and manly Seth, a character no one can fail to admire. 12mo. Illustrated. (Weight, 26 ozs.) $1.25

The Way of the Strong. The story of a man—in the gold fields of the Yukon and in the wheat fields of Canada. It shows a relentless spirit dominating in whatever he attempts. In his clash, as a capitalist, with labor; in his frenzied love for his wife; in his every mannerism, this man is a character which establishes, in modern fiction, a goal far beyond those set by contemporary writers. 12mo. Illustrated. (Weight, 26 ozs.) $1.35

DICKENS, CHARLES.—See Classics Retold to Children.

DIXON, ROYAL A.

Signs is Signs. Aunt Moriah, a true colored mammy of ante-bellum days, is the central interest in this intensely humorous tale. She provokes our mirth at every turn, in the way she lords it over her "lil' white missus," in the way she outwits Uncle Zack, in her supreme dominion in her spotless kitchen, and in her artful scheming to win the Reverend Sinkiller Sneezeweed for a husband. The superstition peculiar to the Negro race shows up strongly, for Aunt Moriah is a firm believer in signs, and no work will she undertake unless the signs are propitious—"signs is signs" is her favorite expression and no amount of argument or persuasion will change her attitude. 12mo. Illustrated. (Weight, 13 ozs.) $1.00

Manual of Play. While we have plenty of handbooks of organized games, we have had none, until now, devoted to devices for free play. This book shows parents how to play with their children and how to help children play by themselves. It tells how to fit up the home play-room simply, and how to stock it with home-made play-things. It deals with such important matters as play with dolls, play with balls, imaginative play, constructive play, laughter plays, play with pets, plays of experimentation, play for girls, Sunday play, etc. 12mo. Illustrated. (Weight, 25 ozs.) $1.50

BRITISH INTERESTS AND ACTIVITIES IN TEXAS, 1838–1846.

By EPHRAIM D. ADAMS.

276 pages. 12mo. Price, $1.50.

This work is the result of extended research in the diplomatic archives of this country and of Great Britain. The author throws new and interesting light on the attitude of the English government toward Mexico, Texas, and the United States during the agitation for Texan independence and annexation. The book is a valuable contribution to the diplomatic questions discussed in part in the previous volume by Reeves on American Diplomacy under Tyler and Polk.

DIPLOMATIC NEGOTIATIONS OF AMERICAN NAVAL OFFICERS, 1778–1883.

By CHARLES OSCAR PAULLIN.

380 pages. 12mo. Price, $2.00.

This work presents a brief but comprehensive study of the service of the navy in the field of diplomacy, from John Paul Jones to Rear-Admiral Schufeldt. The naval officer as a diplomat was distinguished for simplicity, candor, and directness, and as his negotiations were for the most part with far distant oriental peoples, he was often the first to establish permanent relations with the United States.

THE DIPLOMACY OF THE WAR OF 1812.

By FRANK A. UPDYKE.

504 pages. 12mo. Price, $2.50.

Then, as now, the United States was the principal neutral power in a war which involved all Europe. The causes of the War of 1812 are clearly set forth. The Treaty of Ghent, the hundredth anniversary of which has recently been celebrated, is the central theme of the latter half of the volume. The negotiations leading to the signing of that treaty are clearly described. The terms of the treaty are examined as well as the questions in dispute which were omitted, and which continued to disturb the relations of the two countries for many years.

THE HAGUE PEACE CONFERENCES OF 1899 AND 1907.

By JAMES BROWN SCOTT.

Solicitor for the Department of State and Technical Delegate to the Second Conference.

Two volumes. 8vo. Price, $5.00.

Vol. I. The Conferences, 887 pages. Vol. II. Documents, 548 pages.

These two substantial volumes furnish the most complete account of the Conferences which has appeared in English, and will undoubtedly be accepted as the definitive account of the work of those two great gatherings. The fact that the author was the Technical Delegate of the United States to the Second Conference and played a conspicuous part in its deliberations adds to the authoritative value of the treatise.

FOUR PHASES OF AMERICAN DEVELOPMENT.

FEDERALISM—DEMOCRACY—IMPERIALISM—EXPANSION.

By JOHN BASSETT MOORE.

218 Pages. Crown 8vo. Price, $1.50.

The lectures embraced in this volume are designed to sketch in clear and vivid outline the great movements by which the historical development of the United States is distinguished and to indicate the causes to which they were due. The order in which the several topics are discussed is not intended to denote a strict chronological succession; hence they are described as phases rather than as stages of development.

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE EMPIRE OF JAPAN.

With the Addresses delivered at the meeting in the Johns Hopkins University, April 17, 1889, in Commemoration of its Promulgation.

48 pages. 16mo. Price in paper, 50 cents.

THE CREED OF THE OLD SOUTH.

By BASIL L. GILDERSLEEVE.

(In press.)

The author states in the Preface that in the last score of years, he has often been urged by his friends and sympathizers to bring out as a separate book his article issued under this title in 1892, and which attracted wider attention than anything he has ever written. As this (1915) is the jubilee of the great year 1865, the memories of that distant time comes thronging back to the actors in the momentous struggle. In this book there is now published in more accessible form, the authors record of views and impressions that may seem strange even to the survivors of that conflict. There is also included an essay on a cognate theme "A Southerner in the Peloponnesian War" which appeared in 1897.

DISTURBING ELEMENTS IN THE STUDY AND TEACHING OF POLITICAL ECONOMY.

By JAMES BONAR.

156 pages. 8vo. Price, $1.00.

This volume consists of five lectures delivered at the Johns Hopkins University in the spring of 1910. As the title suggests, the lectures are discourses not on economic error in general, but on the more subtle fallacies which are apt to invade the reasoning of trained economists in spite of learning and discipline. The lectures are distinguished by the scholarly tone and philosophical breadth that characterize Dr. Bonar's writings.

THE ECLOGUES OF BAPTISTA MANTUANUS.

Edited with Introduction and Notes, by

WILFRED P. MUSTARD.

156 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.50.

The text is based upon that of the first printed edition, of Mantua, 1498. The Introduction treats of the life of Mantuan, his family and friends, his works, his popularity, the wide use of his Eclogues as a school-book, and their influence upon Sixteenth-Century literature. The Notes are mainly devoted to the poet's use of his great classical models.

THE PISCATORY ECLOGUES OF JACOPO SANNAZARO.

Edited with Introduction and Notes, by

WILFRED P. MUSTARD.

94 pages. Crown 8vo. $1.00.

These Latin Poems are very clever imitations, or adaptations, of some of Virgil's Bucolics. The Virgilian conventions are so far modified that the pastoral eclogue becomes a piscatory eclogue, or an idyl of fishermen. The singers are no longer shepherds, but fishermen, and the scene is no longer Sicily, or Acadia, but the Bay of Naples.

POEMA DE FERNAN GONÇALEZ.

Nueva edicion, con introducción, notas y glosario.

POR C. CARROLL MARDEN.

282 pages. 8vo. Cloth, $2.50 net; Paper, $2.00.

The critical text of this old Spanish poem is based on the extant manuscripts and the early prose chronicles. In point of historical importance Fernan Gonçalez ranks with the Cid. The heroic character of the poem composed in his honor, the inherent interest of the subject matter, the many early legends which it sets forth, the fact that it is one of the very few extant specimens of early epic poetry—these considerations make the Poema de Fernan Gonçalez one of the most important monuments of Spanish literature.

THE JOHNS HOPKINS TABELLAE DEFIXIONUM.

BY WILLIAM SHERWOOD FOX.

68 pages and 9 plates. 8vo. Cloth $1.25. Paper 75 cents.

The Johns Hopkins Tabellae Defixionum are a substantial contribution to our knowledge of the Roman sermo vulgaris of the period of Cicero. The tablets are five in number and together supply about two hundred and fifty lines of new Latin text. They add a number of new words and forms to the lexicon and establish several heretofore regarded as doubtful. The orthography is in many instances valuable to the Romance as well as to the Classical philologian. The palæography fills a gap in the history of the Roman cursive script.

Special attention has been given to the review of new books.

The Bulletin is issued monthly. The volume begins in January but subscriptions can begin with any issue. ENGLISH

AMERICAN LITERATURE

By J. C. Metcalf

THIS work presents in a clear and systematic manner the main facts and tendencies in American literature. Special emphasis has been given to movements and individual characteristics which seem distinctively American. We are beginning to realize at last that American literature is not merely an offshoot from English literature, but that it is in a larger and truer sense a record of national traits and strivings for at least a century and a quarter. Even the Colonial and Revolutionary Periods, in which no great literature was produced, are exceedingly important as a background for the proper estimate of our later literature and should not be neglected by the serious student of American institutions. These earlier formative periods are also interesting in themselves for the lessons they teach of moral and political aspiration: out of them have sprung the idealism that shines in the pages of American history and that makes worthy our national life of to-day. No one can understand aright this noble heritage without some study of our seventeenth and eighteenth century literature, fragmentary as it is. This conviction will account for the extended treatment of those periods in this book and the numerous illustrative extracts from representative writers.

A fuller treatment of Southern writers is to be found in this work than in other volume of similar size on American literature. In the last decade or two the recognition of the literary contribution of the South has steadily grown. Even yet, however, we have only imperfectly come to understand the far-reaching consequence in our literary development of the writings of men and women in the South since 1870; while the sterling worth of a few older authors is just now becoming more apparent as we are getting far enough away from the adverse conditions under which they wrote to see things in right perspective.

The same general method of treatment is followed in this work as in the author's English Literature.

Illustrated. 415 pages; price, $1.25.

ENGLISH LITERATURE

By J. C. Metcalf

IN reading the book one is struck with its perfect sanity. Everywhere there are evidences of a fine sense of proportion, and the entire volume is pervaded by an atmosphere of "sweet reasonableness," in which exaggerations or extremes are impossible. To illustrate, in his treatment of influences of social and other movements on the literary developments of a period, the author refuses to fall in with the enthusiastic doctrine that the history of English Literature is simply a chain of movements, while, on the other hand, in his biographical sketches he is just as careful not to leave the impression that it is nothing more than a series of biographies. He takes the sober view that the truth is to be found in the golden mean, "but with distinct leanings towards the biographies," and this slight over-balance he has carefully preserved throughout the book.

The book is in form and content the outcome of Dr. Metcalf's signally successful experience as a teacher of English Literature, and therefore has the additional merit of having been written "with a definite set of individuals in view."

There are many illustrations of unusual interest and value, including a number that have never before appeared in an English Literature text.

Perhaps no text published in recent years has been more cordially welcomed than this book.

SOUTHERN LITERATURE — By Louise Manly

IN looking for literature for her pupils to read in connection with American history, Louise Manly met with a serious practical difficulty. She found abundant literature in inexpensive form for parallel reading with the history of the Northern States, but very little suitable for reading in connection with the history of the South.

To meet this difficulty, Miss Manly undertook the preparation of a comprehensive review of Southern literature from the beginning of our history down to 1895. In this task she received valuable assistance from well-known educators, and the result is a most helpful volume, which will be found well adapted not only for reading in connection with Southern history, but also as the groundwork for a serious study of Southern life and letters.

We are very highly pleased with Manly's Southern Literature and find that the students are delighted with it.—Miss Lucy Scarbrough, La-Fayette, Ala.

POETS OF VIRGINIA — By F. V. N. Painter

This volume will be welcomed by students and lovers of literature, not only because it is the first comprehensive study of the Virginia poets, and the first anthology of Virginia poetry, but also because it is an important contribution to the culture-history of the Virginia people, and an invaluable source book.

OUR LANGUAGE

By C. Alphonso Smith
Lida B. McMurry and F. T. Norvell

IN the preparation of this series it has been the aim of the authors (1) to interest the pupil by novel but vital illustrations, (2) to make him feel a pride in using good English, (3) to eliminate the dry-as-dust exercises that have so long been in vogue, and (4) to make the knowledge of the English language go hand in hand with the appreciation of English literature.

I LANGUAGE LESSONS

By Lida B. McMurry

THE keynote of this book is its treatment of the paragraph. What is a paragraph? Ask the average pupil of the sixth grade and he cannot tell you. He cannot tell you for the simple reason that his language books have not told him. They have practically ignored the subject. If the unit of thought is the paragraph—thus the authors seem to have reasoned—then the pupil ought to get a clear idea of what constitutes a paragraph just as soon as possible. The subject is therefore introduced at the first practicable moment—in the treatment of letter-writing, the first form of composition taken up.

The treatment of the paragraph forms the backbone of the book from letter-writing to the end. The idea is developed gradually by means of stories in outline, unfinished stories, suggestive pictures, series of related pictures, outlines of letters, suggestions for descriptions, etc. As a rule, the thought is given so that the pupil may devote himself entirely to the form of expression. He is not required to rack his brain for an idea, and then devote his fagged energies to working it out.

The authors have been especially happy in the treatment of inaccuracies of speech. Twelve common errors are brought forward and dealt with in a way that is decidedly refreshing, if not unique. There's a delightful sensation in watching the correct phrase loom up to take the place of the incorrect. Whether one agrees with the authors in all things or not, one cannot lay down the volume without feeling that here is something far beyond the ordinary.

And then there are the pictures—the wonderful story-telling pictures! Where will one find anything—in pictures—so charming to the children, so helpful and satisfying to the teacher?

II LANGUAGE LESSONS AND GRAMMAR

By C. Alphonso Smith

EVERY line of this book has been dictated by experience in the schoolroom, by long study of language problems, and by the desire to adapt all the material used to the needs and limitations of the pupils. To this end explanations are first given of each principle presented, and these are followed successively by apt illustrations, compact definitions, and practical exercises. Exercises in language alternate with simple interpretations of literature, the author believing that it is the duty of a book of this sort to attract the pupil to good literature as well as to drill him in correct language.

The book is divided into two parts, each part having a certain unity in itself, the two parts making a larger and more complete unity. In Part I there is an elementary treatment of the parts of speech, interspersed with exercises in sentence structure, with familiar quotations from the Bible and Shakespeare, with remarks on big and little words, with an exposition of the fundamentals of spelling and punctuation, with pointed anecdotes to be retold, and with many selections from masterpieces of prose and verse.

Part II begins with the paragraph. This is followed by letter-writing, many letters of famous men to children being given. Sentences and parts of speech are treated with more detail and completeness than in Part I, but there is no repetition and no suggestion of fragmentariness in the treatment of either Part I or Part II. As in Part I, there is a constant appeal to the pupil's originality and to his power of imagination, the author realizing that no two pupils are alike, and that no exercises should be chosen that do not minister to the diverse needs of different individualities.

III GRAMMAR

By C. Alphonso Smith

THIS book has been prepared, not for the linguist, to whom grammar is a science, but for the child, to whom it should be simply the means of teaching him how to express his thoughts clearly and correctly.

The plan of the book is in accordance with the most approved methods of presenting English Grammar. There are two general divisions, (I) The Sentence and (II) The Parts of Speech.

The text opens with a brief treatment of the paragraph as a unit of thought. The sentence is then taken up and treated at length. Following this comes a discussion of clauses, phrases and words in the order named.

The book is intended for the upper grammar grades.

263 pages; price, 50 cents.

"The results obtained from the use of Our Language—Grammar are more satisfactory to me than those obtained from the use of any other text on grammar. The pupils like the book. It goes directly to the heart of the subject, is free from doubtful positions on insignificant questions, has clear and accurate definitions, contains an excellent collection of sentences for illustrations, and is written by a master of the English language."—THOS. SPELLING

COMMON WORDS COMMONLY MISSPELLED

By Bruce R. Payne

DR. BRUCE PAYNE, after fourteen years' experience as a teacher in high schools, colleges and summer schools, became convinced of three things:

First.—That spelling is a much more difficult subject than it is usually regarded.

Second.—That students of high-school training misspell a very large number of common words.

Third.—That the study of difficult or unusual words does not necessarily help one in the spelling of common words, and that instead of forcing a student through a list of difficult words rarely used in order that he may find ten such words which he has misspelled, it is far better to find out as nearly as possible what his frequent errors are and restrict his study to overcoming these.

Acting upon these convictions, Dr. Payne invited five thousand teachers to send him a list of common words commonly misspelled by their students.

With these lists before him he selected with infinite pains, 2,375 of the most common words most commonly misspelled.

Out of these words he has built a Speller—the most unique, the most modern, and, for its particular purpose, certainly the most helpful Speller ever produced. It is a book that will gladden the heart of every teacher in the high school and upper grammar grades, for it is the one book such teachers have been wishing for.

Most spellers are built on a theory. But in spelling we face a condition, not a theory. This Speller is built on practice. It is the result of the daily school-room experiences of thousands of teachers scattered over a wide territory.

For the high school and upper grammar grades.

WORD BOOK

By Edward C. Glass

The two essentials of a good spelling book are: 1st, that the words be words that are used; 2nd, that the lists be properly graded. Examination will show that this book possesses these essentials without which no degree of excellence in other respects would justify its existence. The words, arranged according to simplicity of meaning as well as ease of spelling, are those which children know or need. Throughout the book the progress is step by step, with careful regard to the pupils needs and ability.

Rejecting the notion that spelling is altogether an appeal to arbitrary memory, the author, in a logical and systematic way, teaches principals of spelling. Words are arranged according to these principals. according to phonic elements, and according to subject, so as to call the child's attention to their form and meaning and so enable him to spell and use them correctly. From beginning to end of the book, there is not one word list without an underlying principal of arrangement.

Written exercises, so important in teaching the form and the meaning of words, are freely used. While the primary aim of this book has not been sacrificed in an attempt to teach grammar, history, or any other subject, the exercises for copying and for dictation are intrinsically valuable for manner and style.

The directions for study are so clear and simple that the pupil can understand and follow them without being dependent on the teacher's explanation.

Diacritical marks are introduced gradually, and are used in the text only on words liable to be mispronounced. As most English words are accented on the first syllable, accents are marked only when they fall elsewhere.

In orthography, pronunciation, and syllabication, the latest edition of Webster's Internation Dictionary has been accepted as the standard.

WORD STUDIES

By Edwin S. Sheppe
Revised by Edward C. Glass

THE purpose of this series of Spellers is (1) to enable the beginner to recognize readily and to pronounce accurately the various word forms found in his reader; (2) to teach the spelling, meaning and use of words necessary for a sound education, and (3) to bridge the gap between the spelling book and the dictionary.

The phonic drill-lists in the first part of the book are intended primarily to aid the beginner in giving to each letter or combination of letters in a word its proper sound value, and thus to teach him to pronounce words at sight. A drill of fifteen or twenty minutes a day on these lists will quickly put into his possession the key that will enable him to pronounce with rapidity and ease, and by his unaided efforts, nearly every word found in his reading books.

A knowledge of the sound-value of each letter, acquired from the phonic drills, will serve to give the child the power to spell, without previous study, the large class of words that are written as they are sounded. As a further aid to the mastery of English orthography, the important law of the association of like with like is utilized by grouping words, as far as possible, according to both regularity and similarity of spelling. The more prolific and typical classes of words in common use are taken up first, then the smaller groups, and finally the phonic outlaws, which are comparatively few in number.

The gap between the ordinary spelling book and the dictionary is an almost insurmountable obstacle to the pupil, even with the help of a good teacher. Most pupils never learn to use a dictionary intelligently; in consulting it, they seldom get either the correct pronunciation of a word or the meaning suited to its use. The numerous and varied exercises in syllabication and accent, in dictionary practice, in marking letters diacritically, in classifying words, in discriminating between synonyms, in the study of prefixes, suffixes, and roots, are intended to give the pupil an insight into the structure and meaning of words and to make him understand the value and use of a dictionary.

COMMON SCHOOL SPELLER

By E. C. Branson

THE First Book is made to be used side by side with First and Second Readers as a direct and distinct help to the child in learning to read.

The Second Book meets the needs of the pupils in the Third, Fourth and Fifth Reader classes.

The vocabulary includes, first, the vocabulary of the common school textbooks; second, the common words in daily use outside of the schoolroom, especially such as are frequently misspelled or mispronounced. Mere catch-words, difficult to spell and infrequently used, are excluded.

The exercises for dictation, copying, sentence spelling and the like, have an ethical value far beyond that of other spellers, as a casual glance will show. In no other speller will one find so many selections replete with ennobling sentiments.

The systematic reviews of words frequently mispronounced or misspelled will almost inevitably make the faithful pupil a good speller of everyday English.

MATHEMATICS

SCHOOL ARITHMETIC—The Colaw Series.

By J. M. Colaw, J. K. Ellwood
Frank W. Duke and Jas. K. Powers

Book I. 276 pages. Price ..... 35 cents.
Book II. 476 pages. Price ..... 55 cents.

This is a two-book course covering the work in Arithmetic in the Primary and the Grammar Grades in the public schools.

Book I. covers the work usually given in the first four school years.

A primary consideration in the selection of the subject matter and in the method of presentation has been the child himself—his interests, his needs, and his capabilities. Constant effort has been made to bring the entire subject into close touch with child life.

Abundant drills and exercises, both oral and written, are intended to fix the basal number-facts in the pupils mind, and thus secure accuracy and facility in numerical processes. The number of examples and problems given is unusually large and varied. As far as practicable, the supply has been made sufficient to provide all the members of a class with work at the recitation period.

Book II. is designed to cover the matter usually given in the grammer grades of the public schools. The scope of the book and the topical treatment of subjects will allow such modifications in arranging the work by grades as will meet the needs of both country and city schools.

A controlling factor in the selection of material, the arrangement of topics, and the manner of presentation was to produce a book which was thoroughly modern in every particular, and which would both arouse the interest of pupils and meet the demands of the schoolroom.

The book contains an exceptionally large number of problems, oral and written, which have been selected and graded with great care. Among them will be found a sufficient number relating to industrial, vocational, and household affairs. To secure accuracy and speed in calculation, abundant abstract work has been given.

In the preparation of these texts Mrs. M. S. Moffett, Principal of the Herndon (Va.) High School and Instructor in Arithmetic, University of Virginia Summer School, and Miss Natalie Lancaster, Head of the Department of Mathmatics, State Normal School, Harrisonburg, Va., rendered valuable services in outlining the arrangement, supplying material tested in the schoolroom, and in other ways giving to the work the benefit of their accurate scholarship and excellent judgment.

II

ELEMENTARY BOOK, 256 pages. Price.....35 cents.
PRACTICAL BOOK, 400 pages. Price.....52 cents.

This is offered as a Common School Course, intended to fit pupils for the High School or for the affairs of life.

The Elementary Book is for the use of the pupil after he has learned to read and after some drilling and oral instruction in the simplest numerical processes have been given him.

The first part of the text may be used by the teacher as suggestive of the oral work given to beginners. The instruction may then be repeated in a more formal way when the pupil has the book in his own hands.

The course proceeds by carefully graded steps to inculcate those principles so necessary to a beginner in order that he may in later years acquire the habit of thinking in number. Numerous examples are given, the subject matter of which is within the range of the experience of the child, and yet there is a sufficient variety of subjects used to stimulate his interest. Incidentally, many important facts are introduced wherever the number idea is paramount.

Pedagogically the best modern system is followed. The concreteness of development is amplified by pictures which aptly illustrate important principles.

The entire matter of the book is new, and the arrangement is such as to lead the pupil naturally and easily to a comprehension of integers and easy fractions added, subtracted, multiplied and divided.

The subject of decimals is introduced by means of the United States decimal system of currency.

The Practical Book follows the work of the Elementary along logical and useful lines. It embraces all the subjects that properly belong in a book of its scope, so treated as to attract and hold the interest of the pupils. Every subject is so presented as to be readily mastered by pupils of the age and grade for which it is intended. This will greatly facilitate the work of the teacher.

The fundamental operations are reviewed in such a manner as to assure a good working knowledge of them before entering upon higher work, and to set forth strikingly the advantages of a uniform scale as found in the decimal system.

A chapter on Short Methods has many features that will prove helpful in computation. The equation is introduced and utilized in the solution of problems. It is treated in such a way as to be within the reach of those who have never studied Algebra, while laying a foundation for the subject. Technicalities are avoided. A distinguished educator, after examining this part of the book, said that he was gratified at finding such a clear presentation of the equation without the introduction of such expressions as "terms," "members," "axioms," "transposing," etc.

Related Problems cover a wide range of useful information on live subjects while furnishing excellent arithmetical drill.

Ratio and Proportion are so treated as to take away their sting, and to supply pupils with a valuable approach in the solution of problems.

The solutions throughout the book are models of cleverness and suggestiveness. By the time the latter part of the book is reached the pupil has at his disposal many "lines of approach" in the solution of problems that may come to him in after life.

III

Primary Book, 276 pages. Price	35 cents.
Intermediate Book, 267 pages. Price	40 cents.
Advanced Book. 462 pages. Price	54 cents.
Advanced Book, half leather. Price	60 cents.

This is offered as a complete series, comprising all the Arithmetic required from the Primary to the High School, both inclusive.

The Primary Book connects Arithmetic with the child's life and makes it real to him. He is taught to count by counting actual things. He is taught to measure by measuring with a definite end in view. He grasps the true idea of number. All through the Primary Book there is ample provision for hand work, sense work, sense training, imaging and expression. You find at every turn an abundance of concrete work and graphic illustration.

The Intermediate Book furnishes additional work in the elementary operations of Arithmetic. Some teachers favor considerable practice in this line before entering upon the Advanced Book. The Intermediate affords this practice, reviewing and extending the subjects embraced in the Primary without duplicating. It is in harmony with the general plan of the series.

The inductive method of the Primary and Intermediate is continued in the Advanced Book. The pupil is not told anything, that he may be led to discover for himself. You do not see a formal statement brought abruptly forward. Questions and suggestions go before as heralds to prepare the way.

One is gratified to note the ample material for mental discipline provided in the oral exercises, which, by the way, put the strain on the reasoning faculty, where it ought to be, and not on the memory, where it ought not to be.

Logical minds will note with pleasure the orderly arrangement of subjects. For instance, common fractions are treated after decimal fractions because the former are more difficult, while the treatment of United States money precedes that of decimal fractions because it serves as an easy introduction to that subject.

Taken altogether, this comes wonderfully near one's idea of an ideal and complete series.

ELEMENTARY ALGEBRA

By J. M. Colaw and J. K. Powers

IN the preparation of this text the aim has been to adapt elementary algebra to the practical needs of high school pupils. In all essential particulars it conforms to the most recent courses of study, and embodies the saner views expressed in the recent reports and syllabi of mathematical societies and associations.

The method of presentation is inductive. By basing the treatment on the pupil's knowledge of elementary arithmetic, algebra is presented as a continuation and extension of that subject. In passing to new ideas, numerical illustrations are freely used, and abundant concrete material has been introduced to make the subject easily and clearly understood.

Atlanta Richmond Dallas

The arrangement is such that no difficult phases are encountered in the first year, and only essentials are emphasized. Throughout the book the subject matter is kept well within the comprehension of the average high school pupil. The problem work begins early and is distributed at frequent intervals so as to prevent interest from tiring by reason of long stretches of merely technical work. Theoretical material is reduced to a minimum; complicated and impracticable examples and problems are avoided.

To meet the requirements of the maximum courses of study, certain topics under the heading "Supplementary Work" have been retained.

Early and frequent use is made of graphical methods. By avoiding technical terms, the treatment is simply and clearly presented.

READING

GRADED CLASSICS

By F. T. Norvell and M. W. Haliburton

THE remarkable popularity of this series of Readers is apparently due to the fact that it teaches the child to read in a way that develops in him a love for reading. Everything is made to bend to this end. It is for this reason that the First Reader has been made the easiest of all the readers that have been made. In its 143 pages of reading one will find but 493 different words. In no other book, we believe, will be found so few words doing service over so great a space. Moreover, all this space is filled with genuine reading matter. There is no padding.

The book was built in full view of the schoolroom. Every sentence was tested in the light of experience. All the features of the "word" and so-called "sentence" methods that have been retained have been retained because they have proved themselves worthy to live. It is a survival of the fittest. These features are supplemented by careful phonic drills. Notice these drills: you will see no diacritics. Notice them again: they are not the words which the pupil has already learned; they are words which he will soon have use for in his reading.

The action sentences and their arrangement are especially pleasing. These sentences wonderfully quicken the child's interest in reading, and wonderfully aid him in grasping the thought of what he is reading.

All the selections are within easy grasp of the child-mind. This does not mean simply that the words are within the child's range, but that the ideas are within his range also. The authors have remembered what so many makers of readers have forgotten, that a story may be written in words of one syllable and yet be utterly incomprehensible to a child.

The book is rapidly progressive. At first glance one will be apt to say that it moves too rapidly. A well-known educator, on picking up the book for the first time, turned at once to the pages in the back of the book, and after a moment said: "This will not do. A child is not ready to read such stories at the end of a First Reader." Then he turned back to the beginning and went through it page by page. "It's wonderful!" he exclaimed at the end. "It shall go into my schools." And it went. He found that the grading is so perfect that when the child gets to the stories he is ready for them: he already knows the words that are used in them.

The pictures—of which there are many beautiful ones in colors as well as in black and white—admirably serve the two-fold purpose of illuminating the text and awakening an interest in art. The teacher will be particularly pleased with the plan of using illustrations very freely in the first part of the text, and less freely in the latter part. This plan not only gives more room for reading matter where it is especially needed, but it throws the child more on his own resources as he goes along. It is refreshing to see that the illustrations are not allowed to break up the text to the confusion of the child. The editor rather than the printer has had his way, and clearness is not sacrificed to the mysteries of mechanical make-up.

The Second Reader is composed entirely of classics. There is no made-to-order nature talk, but what is far better, there are opportunities along the way for talks about nature from the teacher himself. It is not a book of botany or zoology; it is a book of literature; and nature talks, such as disfigure many readers, are not literature.

The grading in this reader is as accurate as in the first book. No lesson contains more than eight new words. The 493 words used in the First Reader are placed in the beginning of the Second, thus giving the teacher an opportunity to review the First before entering upon the Second.

It delights the eye all the way through this book to see nothing but literature. One will notice a gradual change in the character of the stories as one turns the pages. At the beginning they are imaginative; farther on they grow more probable and true. There is, too, a happy grouping of related subjects. The child's interest reaches its height in the thirty-five or forty pages at the end which tell of child-life among the different races. There is a description of the child-life of a race, and then one or two favorite stories of the children of that race.

One closes the book thinking of the remarkable richness and variety of the feast it spreads. There are selections from the French, German, Norse, Japanese, Hawaiian, Old English, Norwegian, Indian, and one knows not how many more.

The Third Reader has 695 new words and fifteen prose and fifteen poetical selections. The accurate grading of the first two books is continued in this Reader. No lesson contains more than ten new words, the average being eight.

The subject matter has been chosen with unusual care. Child-life is the prevailing keynote. While nature-study lessons as such have been excluded, it will be found that a great deal of the subject matter opens up a tempting path to nature work.

The child who studies this Reader will hardly realize that it is a textbook. Seat work, such exercises as "Use these words in sentences," quotations incomprehensible to the child-mind, definitions, and all such useless padding, have been omitted; and even the lists of new words have been relegated to the back of the book.

In the choice of illustrations the authors have shown an intimate knowledge of child-nature. Every picture in the book appeals to the child's sense of art and quickens his interest. Especially valuable are the marginal illustrations which happily take the place of the bewildering definitions which usually accompany the unfamiliar words of the text.

As for the Fourth and Fifth Readers—well, we do not believe that there is anything—in Readers—more thoroughly satisfying than these golden sheaves of complete, exquisitely illustrated stories gathered from the whole field of classical literature.

SUPPLEMENTARY READING

LIFE OF WASHINGTON

By Mrs. M. L. Williamson

AS the author reminds us in her preface, although more than a century has passed since the death of Washington, his name is still the most illustrious upon the pages of American history. Living during a period of expansion and changes, as ambassador, statesman, captain-general and president, he served his country long and faithfully. Inasmuch as the question of expansion is again rife, and the conditions of our government are changing, it is well to review his life and character, and to place them anew before the youth of our country.

LIFE OF ROBERT E. LEE

By Mrs. M. L. Williamson

THE story of a beautiful life beautifuly told. As Mrs. Williamson asks in her preface, "While teaching pupils to read, why not fix in their minds the names and deeds of our great men, thereby laying the foundation of historical knowledge and instilling true patriotism in their youthful souls?" And as she adds, "In looking over the lives of our American heroes we find not one which presents such a picture of moral grandeur as that of Lee. Place this picture before the little ones, and you cannot fail to make them look upward to noble ideals."

LIFE OF
THOMAS J. JACKSON

By Mrs. M. L. Williamson

IN words which little children will quickly comprehend, Mrs. Williamson presents a most striking portrait of perhaps the most striking figure in the military annals of modern times. She is especially happy in her effort to portray "amid the blaze of his matchless military genius, the unchanging rectitude of his conduct, the stern will-power by which he conquered all difficulties, his firm belief in an overruling Providence, and his entire submission to the Divine will. These traits of character were the corner-stone upon which he reared the edifice of his greatness, and upon which the young people of our day will do well to build."

LIFE OF J. E. B. STUART By Mrs. M. L. Williamson

IN preparing to wirte her lives of Lee and Jackson Mrs. Williamson's attention was called to the fact that there was no book in print telling for children the story of the wonderful deeds of Major-General J. E. B. Stuart, who has been justly called "the eyes and ears of Lee." To make good this omission she has prepared this charming little volume with the hope that it will not only pass on to the future the captivating story of his wonderful feats and valorous services, but will also warm the hearts of rising generations to lives of courage and devotion.

In the later stages of the work Miss Evelina O. Wiggins of the Lynchburg (Va.) Public schools assisted the author by contributing various valuable materials, securing Mrs. Stuart's criticism of the manuscript, and adapting the book to the practical needs of the school room.

NORTH CAROLINA HISTORY STORIES By W. C. Allen

A SERIES of delightful sketches in simple language suitable for the Fourth and Fifth Reader grades. The stories begin with the landing of the first English people, and present the salient features of North Carolina's history from this point down through the Revolution. These sketches have a local flavor and coloring not to be found in a primary history. The inner life of the people is interwoven with their struggles for liberty.

There are forty-five stories.

Illustrated; price, 50 cents.

TENNESSEE HISTORY STORIES By T. C. Karns

IN the preparation of this book the aim has been to give to the children of Tennessee such an insight into the history of their State as will awaken in them a desire for more, and cultivate in them a taste for historical reading and research. As the author well says, no State has a history of more absorbing interest than Tennessee. "Her people were among the first pioneer settlers west of the Alleghanies. Her sons struck a decisive blow for American liberty at King's Mountain. She was one of the first three States added to the Union. Her early situation west of the mountains gave her a unique relation to the rest of the country. Moreover, she has always played a prominent part in the affairs of the nation, and her soldiers and statesmen have been among its leaders."

Designed for supplementary reading in the third and fourth grades.

Illustrated; price, 50 cents.

TEXAS HISTORY STORIES By E. G. Littlejohn

WITHOUT attempting to present a connected narrative of events, the author has depicted the lives of the leading characters of the Lone Star State in a manner at once graphic and beautiful.

Atlanta Richmond Dallas

The salient features of the era of exploration are grouped about the adventurer, Cabeza de Vaca.

The incidents of the short day in which the "lilies of France" waved over the colony are made to live in the life of the chivalrous and courteous La Salle.

The Alamo, San Jacinto, and Goliad, and the heroic deeds which resulted in the establishment of the Republic, become part and parcel of the lives of Houston, Austin, and David Crockett; while the glorious part which Texas played under the "Stars and Bars" is immortalized with the name Dick Dowling.

For the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Grades. Illustrated; price, 50 cents.

SOLDIER LIFE IN THE ARMY OF NORTHERN VIRGINIA (Revised)

By Carlton McCarthy

HISTORIANS deal with public men and public events. Carlton McCarthy deals with the private soldier in his everyday life. He tells what the historian has left untold, and it is the most interesting part of the story. There's nothing like it—nothing save the fireside talks with which our soldier boys once charmed our nights. And this is really what this book is—the fireside talks of one of the most charming of talkers. Few men can tell a war story so well.

None can better describe the minute details of a soldier's everyday life, for he was one of them, a boy private in that ragged band of heroes who followed Lee.

For the Fifth Grade. Illustrated; 225 pages; price, 50 cents.

"TELL ME A STORY"

By Lida B. McMurry

A First Reader

"Tell Me a Story" is a delightful little reader—one really worth while.—Miss Frances Dodie Hooe (Primary Methods), Dallas, Tex.

The book certainly is full of delight for the lucky little children who find these stories for the first time.—Elizabeth V. Brown, Director of Primary Instruction, Franklin School, Washington, D. C.

B F Johnson Publishing Co

As used as I am to Primers and First Readers, and to new schemes in new books, I am perfectly charmed with "Tell Me a Story." I have literally read every line in it, because you have brought together so many choice classics that appeal to the old, and must be irresistible to children.—Dr. A. E. Winship, Editor Journal of Education, Boston, Mass. (From a letter to the author.)

It should be in the hands of every primary child in the State.—Margaret M. Withrow, Vice-President State Primary Teachers' Association, Lexington, Va.

112 pages. Illustrated in color and in black and white. Price, 30 cents.

FIFTY FAMOUS FABLES

By Lida B. McMurry

THE fifty fables in this book have been selected for second-grade reading because they are easily comprehended by pupils of that grade and because they teach lessons which every child should learn.

Most of the stories have been successfully used for several years with classes of children in the State Normal School at DeKalb.

Price, 30 cents.

GRIMM'S FAIRY STORIES

Edited by M. W. Haliburton and P. P. Claxton

For the First and Second Grades. Illustrated; cloth; 144 pages; price, 25 cents.

AROUND THE LIGHTWOOD FIRE

By Caroline M Brevard

THE myths given in this fascinating little book belong to the tribal lore of the indians of the South, and they represent the life and ideas of those Indians. Most of them in varying versions are common to several tribes; and some of them may be found among the tribes of the North and West.

By the lightwood fire, at the council house, or in the low-built sacred house, the old men and women of the tribal story-tellers told these stories which gave their interpretation and explanation of many strange things.

The first stories in this book are Cosmos myths; these are followed by a group of plant and animal myths; and then come some wonder stories illustrating the development of man's power to control and use nature; and the last story is a myth about the coming of the white man.

STORIES OF BIRD LIFE

By T. Gilbert Pearson

"MY children," writes Dr. Egbert W. Smith, "are captivated with Mr. Pearson's book. I am not surprised. A more wholesome and fascinating volume for young and old I have rarely seen. It is as interesting as a novel and as instructive as a text-book. My only regret is that this book was not in my hands when I was a boy. The style of the book is admirable. Clear and limpid as a mountain brook, it is brightened throughout with gleams of quiet humor that seem a reflection of nature's own sunshine. There are twenty chapters, all beautifully illustrated. It is hard to tell which is the best, all are so full of entertainment and instruction."

PENMANSHIP

SMITHDEAL'S SLANT WRITING BOOKS

By G. M. Smithdeal

BOOK 1 contains the small and capital letters and the figures. The main features of this book are word building, the placing of small letters and their corresponding capitals in juxtaposition, and the introduction of the simplest punctuation marks.

In Book 2 short sentences are used with the simplest punctuation marks. The four arithmetical signs appear in this book.

The copies in Book 3 are interesting historical statements and simple business sentences. There are additional punctuation marks.

Book 4 contains a collection of choice one and two-line quotations from standard authors.

Book 5 contains "Dictation Exercises," treating of interesting persons and events, and a series of social forms, including letters, formal and informal notes, etc.

Book 6 contains business forms in general use, including notes, drafts, checks, telegrams, advertisements, etc.

Great care has been exercised in selecting styles of letters. For example, in most copybooks the standard capitals A and H require lifting the pen from the paper and starting again, twice in the construction of each letter. In the Smithdeal Copybooks these forms are made without lifting the pen at all.

The slant of writing in these books has been reduced from 52 to 45 degrees.

Six numbers. Price, 5 cents each.

HISTORY

A SHORT HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

By Edna H. L. Turpin

THIS book is prepared with careful regard to the needs of sixth and seventh grade pupils. Sentences are short, language is simple and clear, subject matter is kept carefully within the grasp of grammar grade children. When technical or unusual terms are necessary, they are explained in the text or included in the study questions. In order to leave the pupil free to give his whole attention to the subject matter, language and sentence construction are adapted to grades lower than those for which the text is intended. Even poorly graded or backward pupils find the language of this book a pleasant path into the field of knowledge, instead of—as in many history text-books—a barrier between them and the thought.

Sectional egotism and one-sided, narrow-minded views are avoided. South, North, East and West have contributed and are contributing to the nation's greatness and growth. In this book the South receives justice. She needs no more. She has borne too great a part in the nation's history to need one leaf of laurel from another section.

The author of this history is a Southern woman. She was a pupil of Hollins Institute; for six years she taught American history to sixth and seventh grade pupils in Virginia, North Carolina, Arkansas and Philadelphia schools; she spent fifteen years editing and writing text-books on literary and historical subjects.

Qualified in this two-fold way—by teaching American history in various sections and by writing text-books for elementary grades—to know and meet the needs of school children, Miss Turpin spent years making an elementary history fair to her native section, but not unfair to other sections, well graded and interesting, amply supplied with lesson helps, excellent maps and illustrations.

AGRICULTURE

By A. M. Soule and E. H. L. Turpin

A COMMON SCHOOL textbook which aims to bring the child in contact with nature, to have him see for himself how crop plants live and develop under various conditions, and to learn by observation and by simple experiment the relation of the soil and its elements to crop growing.

After the essential facts about the soil and the plant are given, the subject of soil improvement is taken up, and tillage, crop rotation, legumes, manure, and commercial fertilizers are discussed. The clear, full treatment of this subject makes the book especially valuable in every section where is a "run down" farm and a boy who is some day to be a farmer. There is a chapter on Field, Orchard, and Garden Crops, and one on Farm Animals. Under the subject of "Crop Enemies and Friends" weeds and harmful fungi and insects, and methods of controlling them are discussed. There are sections about good roads, farm tools, trees, and school gardens.

In the Appendix are useful tables and suggestions for work on special subjects which may be desired in certain sections and grades.

The book is profusely illustrated with pictures which really illustrate and explain the text.

320 pages; price, 75 cents.

Danish-Norwegian-English English-Danish-Norwegian

SELF-PRONOUNCING

DICTIONARY

By HENRY NISSEN

THE value and merit of this dictionary will readily be appreciated. Its two-fold design is to supply a long-felt need of having a self-pronouncing dictionary of convenient (hip-pocket) size and to give to the Danish-Norwegian population a system of markings that will minimize the difficulties of studying the English language. With a little study of the simplified system of diacritical markings and phonetic re-spellings used in part I, one may, without difficulty, consult any standard English dictionary, and escape the confusion resulting from the use of two systems of markings. In part II, a key to Danish-Norwegian pronunciation is provided, as an aid to those who wish to learn the Danish-Norwegian language.

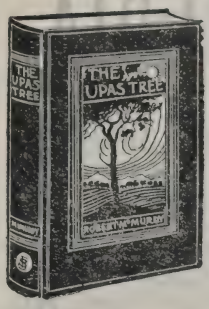
A LAWYER'S NOVEL



The Upas Tree

By Judge Robert McMurdy

This book combines the charm of a romance, the grip of a detective story and the dramatic interest of a trial for life. It is replete with complicated legal situations and presents the most powerful argument against the death penalty ever written.

The hero of "THE UPAS TREE" is Beckwith Miller, a lawyer of average ability, who is brought to the shadow of the gallows by a network of incriminating circumstances. In his legal defender, Colonel Sickles, a veteran practitioner, the author has created a character which will live in literature long after most of the heroes and heroines of the "best sellers" in the fiction of today are forgotten.

No lovelier character than that of Norris Gradley, the heroine of this most charming story was ever depicted in fiction. The story is replete with scenes and situations of strong dramatic interest which hold the reader's rapt attention from the first to the last page.

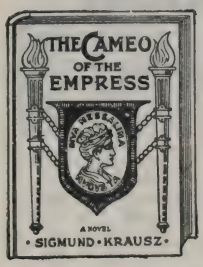
Recent Popular Fiction

The Cameo of the Empress



By SIGMUND KRAUSZ.

THE plot is handled with great originality; the scene is laid chiefly in Naples, Pompeii and Capri; the principal characters are American pleasure seekers in Italy. A beautiful girl, full of sentiment, an earnest young archaeologist, a lively young artist, a funny porous-plaster manufacturer, two bachelor girls — all Americans; an interesting young villain and a charming young artists' model, both Italians, with some minor actors, are the principal personages that furnish the material for the author. The story carries the reader with sustained interest from the first page to the last, in a succession of unexpected situations and surprises, and the entirely novel employment of the occult in the final development of the story is a suggestion that will attract the attention of all readers of high-class fiction.

The Vital Touch A STORY OF THE POWER OF LOVE

By FRANCES M. SCHNEBLY.

VIVIDLY and correctly portrays human nature at its best. Full of passion and pathos, illustrating the power of love to conquer all other human emotions and become the sole guiding principle of life. Every page is of absorbing interest, which holds the reader spellbound from first to last. The characters are most skilfully drawn, and thoroughly likable. Intensely dramatic situations adroitly handled.

"An idyllic romance."—Evening Wisconsin.

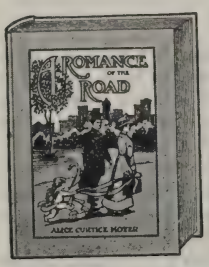
Illustrated. 246 pages. 12mo, Extra cloth, ornamental design in gold and ink, $1.00 net.

A Romance of the Road



By ALICE CURTICE MOYER.

SOMETHING new in fiction — because so much is fact. A "sure enough" story, where the characters are actual, living, breathing human beings. "But the one romance, the principal romance, is the romance unique." It couldn't happen exactly the same anywhere else, nor under any other conditions. It is purely a "Romance of the road." It is full of life and action, and at the same time free from the lurid atmosphere that mars so many of the modern stories.

279 pages. 12mo, Extra cloth, original ornamental design, colored frontispiece and five pages of grouped portraits in halftone, $1.00 net.

Radford's Estimating and Contracting

A mistake in estimating means the difference between a profit or a loss on a contract. In these days of modern construction it is not safe to guess or go by "rule of thumb." Even experienced contractors who rely upon eyesight or rough calculations make costly errors.

It is mighty easy to overlook some important detail if it is not down in black on white. Jobs are lost because of too high prices. Profits are lost because prices are too low. Be on safe ground; have a reliable, accurate guide to help you in your figuring.

A safe and sure guide for any contractor. Its 887 pages are filled with up-to-date methods for rapid, systematic and accurate calculation of costs of all types and details of building construction and all related work of contractors.

It gives quotations and other data indicating the cost of materials and labor, standard schedules and forms used for measurements and estimates, labor-saving tables and all other points a contractor, builder or carpenter should know.

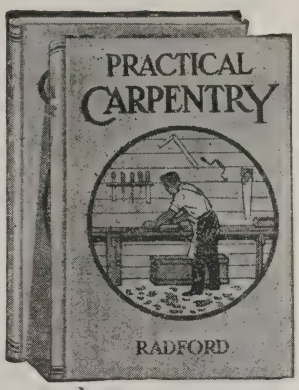
Practical Carpentry



There are over 400 illustrations in the two volumes. Many of these illustrations cover an entire page and they completely and instructively illustrate the text. They show the detail and work down to the very minutest point.

Each volume measures 6x9 inches and is bound in cloth with cover design attractively stamped, and contains more than 300 pages, making the complete work over 600 pages of useful and necessary information, written so that any reader can understand every sentence and follow the text and illustrations.

Special chapters devoted to good and faulty construction and all kinds of framing, besides information on geometry, arches, centers, window and door heads, steel square in carpentry, house framing, roofs and roof construction, building construction, covering of roofs, mouldings, joints, straps and other fastenings, stair building and many questions and answers on all subjects pertaining to building.

The most complete, accurate, practical and up-to-date work of its kind. It describes the best and quickest methods for laying roofs, rafters, stairs, floors, hopper bevels, mitering, coping, splayed work, circular work and, in fact, for forming all kinds of joinery and carpenter work.

Framing

House Framing, Barn Framing Roof Framing

The largest book of its kind ever published. It consists of 356 pages, size 6 x 9 inches, and printed from large, clear type on a high-grade book paper. More than 100 pages of illustrated details make it most valuable.

This new book is written so that any reader can understand every page, every term used and every detail shown. It is entirely free from technicalities, and yet its pages are meaty with instructions to all classes of builders, from the youngest apprentice to the journeyman, as well as the practical builder and the largest contractor.

Practical information is the keynote. By practical, we mean information that can be successfully applied to the everyday work of the average carpenter, builder and contractor, as well as the more intricate forms of framing that come less often, but about which it is necessary to be fully posted. The book presents problems as they have been worked out by well-known architects and the man on the job.

Details of Building Construction

By WM. A. RADFORD

A complete manual of building practice, as applied to carpentry, construction and the use of millwork. It is a remarkable collection of full-page plates, accurately drawn and reproduced to exact scale, showing clearly every detail of modern building construction and finish. These plates make plain the framing and construction of residences of every type. Every popular and attractive style of interior trim is fully detailed. Special ideas are presented for the appropriate interior finish for every room or part of the house. These ideas are worked out complete, the drawings showing both the arrangement of the room and all the interior trim, including built-in features, fully detailed. Carpenters are called upon to plan and build buffets and sideboards for the dining room, kitchen cabinets, cases and cupboards for the kitchen and pantry, bookcases for the living room and library, wardrobes and linen closets for the chambers, fireplaces with wood mantels, window seats, etc. Thirty-eight full-page plates, showing complete details of interior trim, with special "built in" features for every room and part of a modern residence.

All details are drawn to scale and the illustrations are remarkably clear and distinct. The size of each page (9x12 inches) makes possible a more complete explanation and leads to a better understanding than the average printed details. A contractor, builder or carpenter will find in this book many solutions of work that have never before been made plain to him and he can be sure that each is correct. Forty-four full-page plates, presenting a graded series of 197 figures detailing completely every point in frame, brick and stone construction.

THE AMERICAN JOURNAL OF THE MEDICAL SCIENCES

GEORGE MORRIS PIERSOL, M.D., Editor.
JOHN H. MUSSER, Jr., M.D., Assistant Editor.

MONTHLY. ILLUSTRATED. FIVE DOLLARS PER YEAR

NEARLY a century of leadership makes it the preferred medium for the important announcements of the entire medical world. Moreover, it is preëminently the useful magazine of the profession. Sir William Osler calls it "one of the world's few great journals." Its editors have striven successfully to present the ripe thought and experience of leaders in every field and eliminate all that is not of real value. It is not a newspaper or an organ, but a periodical of world-scope. Its pages are filled, not with ordinary news or gossip, but with the essential literature of the medical profession—most of all, with useful discussion of the puzzling conditions of practice by foremost teachers and men whose exceptional experience in hospital and general practice gives their views the greatest weight.

Practical, authoritative, it offers the results of research and experiment, the detailed experience the progressive practitioner must possess. Under "Progress of Medical Science" the world's announcements are assembled, analyzed and discussed in the light of their own research by authorities in each department. The condensed, readable, proven residue is the world's real progress. Representative of those assisting in this work are: W. S. Thayer, M.D., Johns Hopkins; Roger S. Morris, M.D., Clifton Springs Sanitarium; J. William White, M.D., University of Pennsylvania; John McCrae, M.D., McGill University; Samuel W. Lambert, M.D., Columbia University; Milton B. Hartzell, M.D., University of Pennsylvania. Each number offers at least 10 original contributions of vital importance. The American Journal keeps the practitioner, surgeon or specialist in definite touch with the best thought and progressive practice of his profession. Its files are a reference library kept constantly revised. Each number of the Journal is a well-rounded volume. Always timely in its consideration of subjects of immediate interest to the profession. It is a reflection of the advanced thought of the medical world developed along lines of practical usefulness.

PROGRESSIVE MEDICINE

Quarterly. Illustrated. 1200 Pages. Postpaid, Paper, $6.00—Cloth, $9.00 Per Annum.

Edited by HOBART AMORY HARE, M.D.
Professor of Therapeutics, Materia Medica, and Diagnosis, Jefferson Medical College.

Assisted by LEIGHTON F. APPLEMAN, M.D.
Instructor in Therapeutics, Jefferson Medical College.

ITS immeasurable service to the medical profession establishes Progressive Medicine as an institution of unique importance. It supplies in orderly and usable form a mass of new material culled from the important medical journals of the world. The combined subscription price of the journals consulted by the staff and contributors is over $1200, two hundred times the cost for a year of Progressive Medicine. They are printed in the language of every civilized country, and embody the important announcements of the world's progress in medical science. Issued quarterly, Progressive Medicine is a digest covering the entire field, and presenting in complete detail advances, discoveries and improvements in medical and surgical science.

No dreary mechanical compilations are offered, prepared with scissors and paste, but virile, readable, original narratives, in which the author not only reviews and analyzes the progress of events but embodies his own knowledge and wide experience. Beyond estimate is the value of the time and special training expended to place the world's medical progress and its significance at the ready disposal of the reader. The result is a symposium, authoritative, complete and readable, in which actual results and real progress alone are presented. The observations of widely-separated workers are coördinated: missing links supplied; the superficial, unproven and non-essential rejected.

Progressive Medicine is the digested essence of the entire current medical literature of the world, clarified and explained by men whose practical experience enables them to grasp and indicate the bearing of each new advance on the every-day work of the practitioner or specialist, of the research worker or the surgeon. It is a complete reference library, conveniently arranged by subjects, carefully indexed and thoroughly revised four times each year.

The Single-Code Girl

By BELL ELLIOTT PALMER Frontispiece in color by CHASE EMERSON
Color wrapper Net, $1.25 Postpaid, $1.40

DOES the world demand from the young man about to marry the same standard of purity that it demands from her who is to be his bride? Ought, or ought not, the world to demand the "single code" of morals for both sexes?

Every one has views on this great and vital subject, consequently every one will be interested in reading what may be well called the great novel of eugenics.

The suitor for the hand of a young woman, whose great personal charm is enhanced by perfect innocence, in answer to the demand of the young woman's elder brother, her only protector, reveals his life in a series of vividly written letters in which he tells his experience with the eight different feminine types—beginning with his first child-sweetheart—whom he has known intimately. Other characters become involved in a sentimental way and no one can read without being drawn on to find some chapter in his or her own life faithfully mirrored. The tone is elevated and elevating, as might be expected from the experienced magazinist and social worker who is the author.

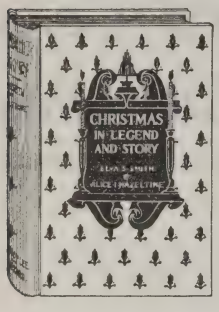
Christmas in Legend and Story

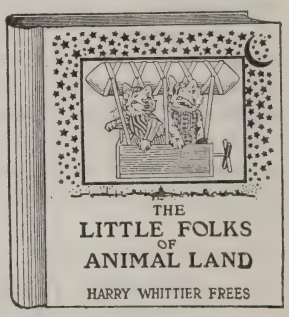
A Book for Boys and Girls



Compiled by ELVA S. SMITH, Cataloguer of Children's Books, Carnegie Library, Pittsburgh, and ALICE I. HAZELTINE, Supervisor of Children's Work, St. Louis Public Library Illustrated from famous paintings Net, $1.50 Postpaid, $1.70

IN their experience in providing reading for children, these trained and efficient librarians saw the need of a book that should group the best of real literature regarding Christmas. With wide research and great pains they have gathered the noblest, grandest, sweetest, and most reverent of all that eminent writers in varying lands and in different times have told us in prose and verse of the origin and sentiment of this "gracious time." The style and decoration of the book are in keeping with its contents.

Little Folks of Animal Land

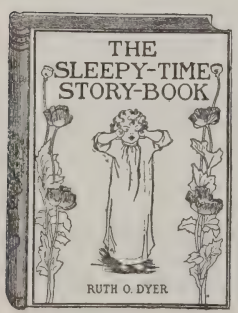


Photographed and described by HARRY WHITTIER FREES Sixty full-page half-tones of animal pets, costumed, posed, and photographed from life, each with descriptive page in story-sequence Square 8vo Cloth Done in sepia on India-tint dull-coated paper Photographic cover-insert, end-leaves, and jacket Net, $1.50 Postpaid, $1.70

MR. FREES has no equal in the posing and photographing of pet animals, especially kittens and puppies, which he delights to clothe in quaintly human style and cause to appear intently engaged in all manner of duties and pastimes. His clever imagination also lends itself readily to entertaining story-telling. The result is a book that surprises and delights all who see it. Each half-tone and its page of bright descriptive narrative form one link in a unique photographic story-chain. The book cannot well be described; it must be seen.

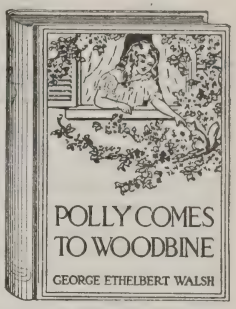
The Sleepy-Time Story-Book

By RUTH O. DYER With frontispiece by ALICE BARBER STEPHENS and fifty-four pen-and-ink illustrations by BERTHA DAVIDSON HOXIE Decorative end-leaves and title-page Special Binding Net, $1.00 Postpaid, $1.10



INTELLIGENT mothers have learned better than to spoil the restful sleep of a child, and probably exert an unfortunate influence upon his disposition and character, by tales of ogres, dark woods, and savage beasts. They know he cannot rest well with his mind excited and his blood quickened by tales of adventure, but are at a loss to answer the natural plea for a bed-time story in a way that shall interest and yet soothe. The simple nature-stories in this attractive book are the prescription of an expert for all such cases. Using familiar objects, they, with words adapted to a lulling tone of voice, will hold the attention of a child until refreshing drowsiness comes to bring healthful rest.

Polly Comes to Woodbine



By GEORGE ETHELBERT WALSH Illustrated by F. LILEY YOUNG Net, $1.00 Postpaid, $1.10

WOODBINE was a charming country town where Uncle Jethro and Aunt Miranda lived their comfortable but very lonely lives on just such a bountiful old-fashioned farm as one likes to read about. To this home came Polly, a bright, loving, cheerful little girl. There was a mistake about her coming — at least, it seemed so — but it turned out for the best. The book is of value in showing what a blessing a happy, helpful disposition is, not only to any child so fortunate as to possess it, but also to all with whom the child comes in contact.

Elijah Kellogg: The Man and His Work

Edited by WILMOT B. MITCHELL, Professor of Rhetoric and Oratory in Bowdoin College Fully illustrated Net, $1.20 Postpaid, $1.35

PROMINENT men like Gen. Joshua L. Chamberlain, Professor Chapman of Bowdoin College, and others, have contributed recollections of such portions of Mr. Kellogg's life as were best known to each. His early life, student days, pastoral life, authorship, and famous work among the seamen in Boston are all treated capably and well. "Spartacus," "Regulus," etc., are included.

The Little Knight of the X Bar B

By MARY K. MAULE Illustrated by MAYNARD DIXON $1.50

THIS story centres about a mysterious lad of gentle breeding who is brought to the X Bar B ranch by the owner, whom no one dares question. He becomes the pet of the men in the most delightful comradeship, and, young as he is, infuses a spirit of chivalry into his rough yet tender friends from his recollection of stories of knightly days learned from his mother. It is only at the close of the book, when as a well-grown young man he has been through many thrilling adventures, and seen all the phases of the picturesque life that is so rapidly passing away, that the mystery — by means of a bold and striking denouement—is cleared away.

The Commodore

Illustrated by ALICE BARBER STEPHENS 12mo Cloth Net, $1.25 Postpaid, $1.40

THIS powerful story in seven parts tells of as many stages in development of the hero, whose early pet name, the "Commodore," follows him from a little boy, born in the "Service," which is to say the U. S. Navy, to an officer upon a threshold of a career in that "Service," which has been the greatest force in his life. The romance of a strong man's love enters in the final part. But there is vastly more to the story than seven periods in the life of the hero.

The Sanctuary Net, $1.25 Postpaid, $1.40

THE author makes brotherhood the key-note of the story, and the soul-development of three characters, each along different lines, the chief issue, uniting something of the Buddhistic wisdom of the East with the Christian faith of the West.

Norris Williams, "Eddie" Mahan, and many more tell the best there is to tell about every form of athletic contest of consequence. The best qualified of experts to instruct boys, Alfred P. Morgan, has in a book far superior to any other of its kind told not only how to make all kinds of motors, telegraphs, telephones, batteries, etc., and to do so economically, but has explained the principles upon which these depend for operation, and how the same thing is done in the every-day world. So well presented and so attractive is this really great book that it will be an education for any one, of any age, to have it.

PHILLIPS EXETER SERIES

Each finely illustrated $1.25

The Half-Miler

Ninth Volume of "Phillips Exeter Series"

"THE Half-Miler" is the story of a young man of positive character at grips with the stern problem of earning his way in a big school. While not a biography, it is true to life because concerned with things that have happened and may happen again, and with individuals such as actually do exist. The hero is not an imaginary compound of superlatives, but a plain person of flesh and blood, aglow with the hopeful idealism of youth, who succeeds and is not spoiled by success. He can run, and he does run—through the story.

HERE is an up-to-date story presenting American boarding school life and modern athletics.

Making the Nine

THIS story is lively and worth telling, and the life presented is that of a real school.

In the Line

HOW a stalwart young student won his position at guard and made progress in other ways.

With Mask and Mitt

VERY much more than merely a baseball story.

The Great Year

THREE fine, manly captains of the football, baseball, and track and field teams support each other in winning three championships.

The Yale Cup

THE "Cup" given by Yale alumni for athletic and other excellence.

A Full-Back Afloat

DICK MELVIN is induced to earn a passage to Europe by helping on a cattle steamer.

The Pecks in Camp

THE scene of this book is laid in a typical summer camp for boys, with great rivalry between two "lodges," or houses in which the boys live.

STORIES OF THE TRIANGULAR LEAGUE

Each finely illustrated $1.25

The School Four

FOOTBALL is no less prominent in the progress of the story than rowing, and both general school life and competitive relations with other schools are set forth to the life.

At the Home Plate

THERE is good baseball in this book, as its title indicates, but it is hardly more prominent than football and hockey, which in turn are simply features in a grand story of school life.

The Boy with the U. S. Life-Savers

Seventh Volume of the "U. S. Service Series"

A PROMINENT critic has lately said that the books of this series are especially to be commended for the attitude they teach toward our Government. This volume, with its typical American boy as a centre, shows how our Government cares for the lives of its citizens in the Revenue Cutter Service, the Life-Saving Service, and in the depths of the earth, where men from the Bureau of Mines take the lead in rescue work in colliery disasters. It tells how expeditions are sent to bring back those cut off from hope in the unmapped regions of the world. No one can without increased patriotism read of the splendid deeds done for humanity by the United States Government.

The Boy with the U. S. Explorers

Sixth Volume of "U. S. Service Series"

THIS volume tells how our government explores strange places and investigates countless odd forms of plant life in the hope of developing that which may benefit the people of this great land.

The Boy with the U. S. Indians

Fifth Volume of "U. S. Service Series"

A BOOK thrilling in its human side by the heroism demanded in the little-known adventures of those who do the work of "Uncle Sam." This is especially true of those engaged in work with and for the Indians — always a name to conjure with among boys.

The Boy with the U. S. Fisheries

Fourth Volume of "U. S. Service Series"

THERE is no lack of exciting scenes. The far Aleutian Islands have witnessed more desperate sea-fighting than has occurred elsewhere since the days of the Spanish buccaneers, and pirate craft, which the U. S. Fisheries must watch, rifle in hand, are prowling in the Behring Sea to-day.

The Boy with the U. S. Census

Third Volume of "U. S. Service Series"

A BRIGHT American boy learns the growth and resources of our vast country, and how the necessary information is gathered, the securing of which frequently involves hardship and peril.

The Boy with the U. S. Foresters

Second Volume of "U. S. Service Series"

THE life of a youthful forester is followed in adventurous detail — the mighty representative of our country's government though young in years — a youthful monarch in a vast domain of forest.

The Boy with the U. S. Survey

First Volume of "U. S. Service Series"

HERE are told the adventures of the U. S. Geological Survey, not in dry statistical reports and bluebooks, but graphically woven into a stirring narrative that both pleases and instructs.

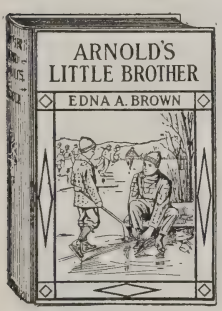
Arnold's Little Brother

Illustrated by JOHN GOSS Net, $1.20 Postpaid, $1.32



A SCHOOL story that is "different." Not the conventional athletic tale, but a lively narrative introducing us to small boys in the Lower school, to big ones in the Upper school, and to masters who are human beings, genuinely interested in the young people under their charge. Boys and girls from ten to fifteen will especially enjoy it, but people even older will appreciate its quiet humor, its skilful character-drawing, and the charm of its unusual atmosphere.

When Max Came

Illustrated Net, $1.20 Postpaid, $1.32

THIS is the story of Max, who did not wish to visit his New England cousins, and of Hope, who was certain that she could never like a boy who had been brought up in Europe. The wooded hills of Maine form the background for a summer in which many things happened after Max came.

Uncle David's Boys

THIS will interest both boys and girls from twelve upwards. It tells how some young people whom circumstances brought together in a little mountain village spent a summer vacation, full of good times, but with some unexpected and rather mysterious occurrences.

Four Gordons

Illustrated $1.50

A BOOK for girls, and boys as well, from thirteen to sixteen. Louise and her three brothers are the "Four Gordons," and the story relates their experiences at home and school during the absence of their parents for a winter in Italy. The interest centres in certain school episodes bearing upon problems of student government. There is plenty of fun and frolic. The conversation is bright and natural, the book presents no improbable situations, its atmosphere is one of refinement, and it has the merit of depicting simple and wholesome comradeship between boys and girls.

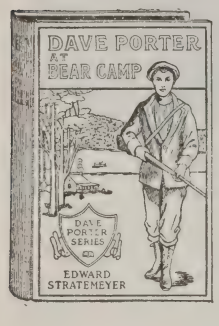
Eleventh Volume of the "Dave Porter Series"



JUST before locating with his chums at Bear Camp, in the Adirondacks, Dave Porter, the favorite young hero of all boy readers, saved some moving-picture actors caught on a burning steam yacht. One of the actors claims that he was stolen from home when a child and put into a poor-house, the very thing that had happened to Dave, and that he is the real Dave Porter, and the latter still a person unknown. This is but one situation of intense interest in a volume replete with action.

Home-made toys have an increased value over purchased ones in the pleasure and practical experience gained in producing them.

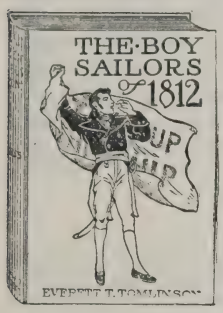
THE WAR OF 1812 SERIES

Illustrated $1.25 each

The Boy Sailors of 1812



A Story of Perry's Victory on Lake Erie

Seventh Volume of "War of 1812 Series"

THE centennial of Perry's wonderful victory makes this book most timely. It is a story based upon the historical knowledge of an expert. It is interesting, stirring, informing, and patriotic in the best sense. Many of our boys and girls do not know, and ought to be taught, the price paid for our liberties. The devotion, tenacity of purpose, and patriotism of young Oliver Hazard Perry are worthy of our most complete recognition, and provide one of the best incentives for our children. The story does not glorify war, but shows that the qualities displayed by Commodore Perry in time of war are just as much needed to-day in problems of a different nature, but equally threatening.

THE very term "history visit" is delightful in its suggestion of a good time while learning what every boy and girl needs to know, and many will welcome this trip to "Bonny Scotland." NORMAN CARVER SERIES

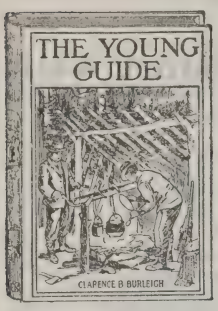
Illustrated $1.50 each



The Young Guide

Or, Two Live Boys in the Maine Woods

Third Volume of "Norman Carver Series"

IN "The Young Guide" one can see exactly what life in the Maine woods is during the height of the hunting season, and few need be told that there is no other life like it. In addition to the natural excitement of hunting, further adventures are supplied by a band of undesirable citizens who steal deer left hanging in the woods and sell them to "yarding crews." Norman Carver, and friend, Fred Warner, the "born woodsman," who wins laurels as a guide, are instrumental in having some of these villains brought to justice. Mr. Burleigh is unusually well qualified to write upon the themes which he selects, and can hold a reader's interest second to none. It is therefore no wonder that his books are gaining ground so fast.

All Among the Loggers

Or Norman Carver's Winter in a Lumber Camp

"KENTON COLLEGE" is Bowdoin College, beautiful in its location and famous in its history. Raymond's athletic abilities insure him immediate and enduring prominence as a student, and the accounts of athletic contests will stir the blood of any one.

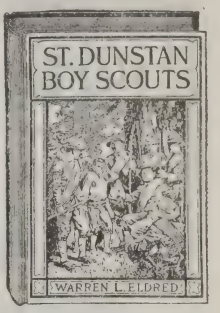
St. Dunstan Boy Scouts



Fourth Volume of "St. Dunstan Series"

Illustrated $1.50

THERE are no better stories for boys than the really clean tales of school life, and the boys of the school called "St. Dunstan" in this series are types of the best sort of American youth, good fellows and good students, in most cases, but not too good. They become interested in the "Boy Scout" movement and organize a company at the school. There is work for them of a mysterious and puzzling nature, and they acquit themselves well.

Classroom and Campus

Third Volume of "St. Dunstan Series"

Illustrated $1.50

A FINE, strong story of school honor and the friendship of high-minded boys. A group of likely lads entering upon the second year at "St. Dunstan's" are led to believe that things might be much better at their school, excellent as it is, if there were a higher standard of student honor and obligation, and less of the "sporty" tendency in connection with athletics.

Camp St. Dunstan

Illustrated $1.50

A TYPICAL summer camp for boys, with all its interesting routine, is described. Interesting new characters are introduced, a mystery develops, and every element of a good boys' story is present.

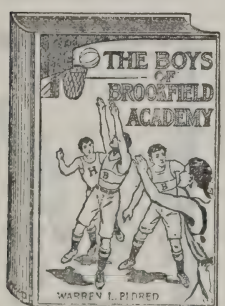
The Oak Street Boys' Club

Illustrated $1.50

THE "gang" spirit in boys is ever present, and is becoming better recognized and understood, and boys' clubs are a distinct and growing feature of modern life. Mr. Eldred tells of rival clubs in the same parish, and of the triumph of common sense and business-like methods over jealousy and intrigue, though in the face of great odds.

The Lookout Island Campers

Illustrated $1.50



THIS is a story of active boys of fifteen or so. They are very fortunate in the friendship of the principal of their school and his friend, an athletic young doctor. Under the care of these two they go into camp on an island where the boys display as many varieties of human nature as could there elders.

The Boys of Brookfield Academy

Illustrated $1.50

THIS story is distinctly worth while. It tells of a boys' school, with a glorious past, but an uncertain future, largely due to the wrong kind of a secret society, a vital problem in hundreds of schools to-day.

By CLARENCE JOHNSON MESSER

Next-Night Stories

Illustrated by L. J. BRIDGMAN Decorated cover
Net, $1.00 Postpaid, $1.10

A MASTER hand at telling "animal stories" holds the attention of four bright children so successfully that the demand for a "next-night story" cannot be denied, and twelve of the finest stories since "Uncle Remus" and Hans Christian Andersen are in this book. By endowing animals with speech and causing them to show human emotions, rich entertainment is furnished, and an excellent lesson of kindness and duty—not too prominent—is plain to see in each night's fascinating disclosure.

Mr. Responsibility, Partner

How Bobby and Joe Achieved Success in Business

Illustrated Net, $1.00 Postpaid, $1.10

THIS is frankly a book with a purpose, and its purpose is to teach boys the fundamental business customs of every-day life, and at the same time encourage the sound traits of character essential to commercial success and good citizenship. This is done by a good and interesting story of some live boys, whose experiences will hold the attention of every one. The leading spirit is pictured with a healthy boy's human qualities to be trained, and impulses to be overcome. A companionable and sensible father aids him judiciously, and leaves success to be worked out on natural lines.

By FRANK I. ODELL

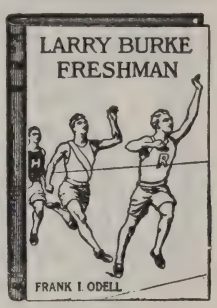
Larry Burke, Sophomore

Second Volume of "Larry Burke Books"

Illustrated $1.25

"LARRY Burke, Freshman," promised such an entertaining continuance of the college course of that sensible, athletic, and generally attractive lad, with his enjoyable circle of friends, that only good things are to be expected from the new volume, which is occupied with the activities of Larry's sophomore year. The leading characters in this book develop along right lines and are worth knowing. Every phase of the social and athletic life of a typical American college is entertainingly brought in, with the educational side not neglected, for Larry and his best friends are by no means at college simply to "make" the various teams or have a good time. Mr. Odell knows well how to present a picture of college life as the best type of students know it, and this story makes it easy for others to understand a college man's enthusiasm and loyalty.

Larry Burke, Freshman



Illustrated $1.25

THIS book bristles with activity: baseball, football, ice-hockey, basketball, track and field events, and a regatta appearing, and each sport brought in with expert accuracy of detail, and the realism that makes one live over his own most thrilling athletic experiences. Along with this is a charming narrative of student life and comradeship—the golden days that have no others like them. Every boy and man who ever heard of a college can take delight in this book.

It is an admirable story of child life, with a literary finish and quality too seldom found in stories intended for juveniles. Mr. Merrill's illustrations are excellent.

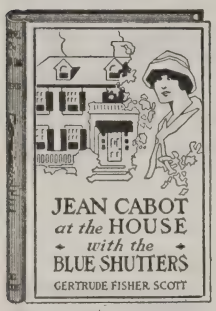
By GERTRUDE FISHER SCOTT

Jean Cabot at the House with the Blue Shutters



Fourth and Final Volume of the "Jean Cabot Books"

Illustrated by ARTHUR O. SCOTT Net, $1.00
Postpaid, $1.10

A NATURAL, wholesome college story, by one who knows her subject and has good sense as well as the gift of narration, is the best light reading a girl can have.

Such a group as Jean and her most intimate friends could not scatter at once, as do most college companions after graduation, and six of them under the chaperonage of a married older graduate and member of the same sorority spend a most eventful summer in a historic farm-house in Maine.

Jean Cabot in Cap and Gown

Third Volume of "Jean Cabot Books"

Illustrated by ARTHUR O. SCOTT Net, $1.00 Postpaid, $1.10

JEAN CABOT is a superb young woman, physically and mentally, but thoroughly human and thus favored with many warm friendships. Her final year at Ashton College is the culmination of a course in which study, sport and exercise, and social matters have been well balanced and through it all has been a constantly broadening spirit of service.

Jean Cabot in the British Isles

Second Volume of "Jean Cabot Books"

Illustrated by ARTHUR O. SCOTT Net, $1.00 Postpaid, $1.10

THIS is a college story, although dealing with a summer vacation, and full of college spirit. It begins with a Yale-Harvard boat race at New London, but soon Jean and her room-mate sail for Great Britain under the chaperonage of Miss Hooper, a favorite member of the faculty of Ashton College. Their trip is full of the delight that comes to the intelligent traveler first seeing the countries forming "our old home."

Jean Cabot at Ashton

Illustrated by ARTHUR O. SCOTT Net, $1.00
Postpaid, $1.10

HERE is the "real thing" in a girl's college story. Older authors can invent situations and supply excellently written general delineations of character, but all lack the vital touch of this work of a bright young recent graduate of a well-known college for women, who has lost none of the enthusiasm felt as a student. Every activity of a popular girl's first year is woven into a narrative, photographic in its description of a life that calls into play most attractive qualities, while at the same time severely testing both character and ability.

By MILLICENT OLMSTED

Harmony Wins

Illustrated Net, $1.00 Postpaid, $1.10

PATHOS, humor, and excitement all have place in this bright story for girls. Little Harmony Hale is distantly related to that brave patriot-spy, Nathan Hale, and through this fact there is an interesting historical touch added to the fascination of the unraveling of the plot.

By ADELE E. THOMPSON

Nobody's Rose

Or, The Girlhood of Rose Shannon

Illustrated Net, $1.00 Postpaid, $1.12

THIS is something particularly attractive and ennobling in the development of a young life from sordid and unpromising conditions to the rich promise of superb womanhood by the force of inborn character, aided at the right time by friends with wisdom in their minds as well as kindness in their hearts. The plan of the story is an old but ever-pleasing one — a beautiful waif coming into her own after experiences that would have made shipwreck of a nature less strong in its inherited qualities—but the ability with which the story is told is very unusual. After being amused by quaint characters and comical situations, and strangely moved by what a lonely young girl has to endure, one leaves the book with a strengthened reverence for real goodness and a firmer belief that the truly deserving can and do win friendship and appreciation. A good, bright, and wholesome book for girls from twelve to sixteen.

THIS is the best book yet written by Nina Rhoades, excellent and successful as are all the others. Marjorie Graham, the "girl," has grown to be fourteen without knowing more of the world than can be seen from a lonely Arizona ranch, although she has a vigorous body, a good mind, and refined parents. So when an uncle takes her for a winter in New York, to be with her cousin of the same age at a fashionable apartment hotel and have a winter's schooling, it is like going into a new world, and her honest naturalness at times rebels against the artificiality she finds. Good friends do not fail to appreciate her, however, and she is a link in clearing up a baffling mystery, the solution of which brings happiness to those she best loves.

The Red House Children's Year

Fourth Volume of "Little Red House Series"

Illustrated by LOUISE WYMAN Net, $1.00 Postpaid, $1.10

THE "Red House Children" have found their permanent place in the hearts of readers of all ages, and their doings become more and more interesting as the children grow larger. Much happened in a summer vacation, and much more took place in the school year following. One boy, "Chan," had a remarkable voice and natural musical talent. More frail than the others, his unusual gift made him doubly precious to all others of a loving family, and it was hard to let him go to Europe, even under the best of care, and with his patron, a famous musician and director, to place unusual advantages at his command. Chan's wonderful trip forms a part of the story, and interesting times for all at home make up a wholesome and natural story which is complete in itself, though necessarily continuing characters previously presented.

Plain Instructions in Hypnotism and Mesmerism

With Psychic Experiences

By A. E. CARPENTER Illustrated 16mo $.75

HYPNOTISM is constantly attracting more and more attention, and no other man in this country is quite so well able to give a plain, popular, and yet scientifically accurate account of its nature and uses for the instruction and entertainment of the general reader as Professor Carpenter.

Hypnotism

How it is Done; Its Uses and Dangers

By JAMES R. COCKE, M.D. Seventh thousand $1.50

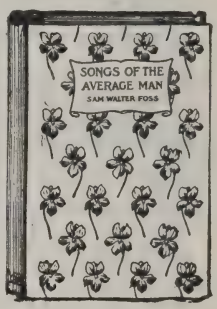
IT is the author's purpose to divest hypnotism of the supernatural, to show how it is done, and to explain its rational basis. Its dangers are carefully described, and its usefulness outlined, both in the medical world and in society.

By SAM WALTER FOSS

Songs of the Average Man

Illustrated by MERLE JOHNSON

Gilt Top Boxed $1.50



SAM WALTER FOSS was, more than any other of his time, the true poet of the people, and his personally chosen title for his last volume fitly characterizes a book of verse that is instantly appreciated by the sound and wholesome people who actually do the world's work, who love poetry of music, feeling and sense, but have neither time nor inclination for society verse or sensational rhapsodies, and no patience with poems that require a university lecturer to interpret them.

Songs of War and Peace

Gilt Top Boxed $1.50

"THERE is an inspiration breathing through the lines of Mr. Foss's verse that appeals to all." A splendid optimism runs through all his lines. He had a sublime faith in the ultimate "goodness of things." His premature death was a loss to literature and humanity, but through his poems he will exert an ever-increasing influence.

Dreams in Homespun

Gilt Top Boxed $1.50

IN his more serious verse Mr. Foss treated the great problem of life in a simple, yet deeply thoughtful manner, which all could understand. "The House by the side of the Road" has been translated into every civilized language and has become the working creed of thousands.

Whiffs from Wild Meadows

Illustrated Gilt Top Boxed $1.50

SAM WALTER FOSS, poet and humorist, voiced in his verse the thoughts and aspirations of the average man he loved so well. He preached the gospel of cheerfulness and happiness and "his poems have eased the pain in many an aching heart."

Back Country Poems

Illustrated Gilt Top Boxed $1.50

"OF all the poems published for a long time none deserve warmer praise and more careful reading than the delightful songs that make up this quaint and natural book."

Mr. Foss had the rare faculty of expressing the humdrum incidents of every-day life poetically. The range of his poetry was as wide as humanity itself. His homely Yankee dialect, overflowing with humor, tenderness and knowledge of human nature fascinates and holds all who read. He thought that the way to make men better was to make them laugh. But underneath the laugh is the clear ringing message which strikes home.

I Have Called You Friends

SOPHIE MAY'S STORIES FOR YOUNG READERS

"GENIUS comes in with 'Little Prudy.' Compared with her, all other book-children are cold creations of literature; she alone is the real thing. All the quaintness of childhood, its originality, its tenderness and its teasing, its infinite uncommon drollery, the serious earnestness of its fun, and the fun of its seriousness, the naturalness of its play, and the delicious oddity of its progress, all these united for dear Little Prudy to embody them." — COL. T. W. HIGGINSON, in North American Review.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT in "Chapters of a Possible Autobiography" names the three favorite stories of his boyhood, "because they were first-class, good, healthy stories, interesting in the first place, and in the next place teaching manliness, decency, and good conduct." All three of these books are still popular, and all three are our publications. They are:

Cast Away in the Cold

By I. I. HAYES No. 3 of "American Boys' Series," page 64 of this Catalogue, $.60

THIS story, by the famous Arctic explorer, who for a long time held the "farthest-north" record, is supposed to be told by an old sea captain of his early Arctic experiences. It teems with vivid descriptions and thrilling adventures, and at the same time gives a great deal of information regarding the natural history of the Frozen North, and the expedients for maintaining life, all told in a most trustworthy manner.

Good Old Times Or Grandfather's Struggle for a Homestead

By ELIJAH KELLOGG Regular Edition, page 57, $1.25 No. 25 of "Elijah Kellogg Series," page 61, $.60

THIS has been pronounced the best pen-picture of olden times ever produced. The time is that of the French and Indian Wars, and the actual location in and about Gorham, Maine. The leading characters are the actual direct ancestors of the author, and their neighbors, whose real language is often quoted as handed down. These brave people met the terrors of Indian attack with greatest bravery, but without ferocity, and exercised a Christian spirit of forbearance whenever possible. Their life was wholesome, vigorous, and of remarkable resourcefulness

The William Henry Letters

By ABBY MORTON DIAZ Page 76 $1.00

ONE of the recognized classics of boyhood. A contemporary critic said: "Perhaps as admirable as anything ever produced in this country in the way of juvenile literature. The letters show an absolute knowledge of boy nature, and in bright, breezy fun they are unsurpassed."

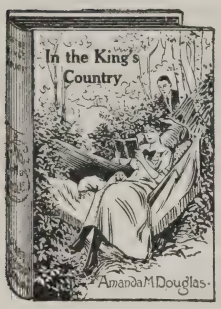
NEW POPULAR EDITIONS

THE AMANDA M. DOUGLAS NOVELS

Twenty-four titles A new illustrated edition, with frontispieces, and picture wrappers in photogravure Price of each volume, $.60



IT is not so long ago that a record of library circulation in a number of principal cities during a considerable length of time showed that Miss Douglas ranked second in point of circulation among American writers of fiction. No temporary "best sellers" shake the hold of standard favorites like those in this list. In recognition of the general regard in which these genuinely good stories are held, we are putting them out at a popular price and at the same time have made them more attractive and desirable than ever before by new frontispieces by an illustrator of high rank, and a new style of binding.

Historical novels, "country philosophy" novels, and problem novels: all have their day and pass out. But human life, love, and experience are constant factors and constantly repeated, and the interest of a masterpiece of really human fiction never wanes. The novels of Amanda M. Douglas never fail to charm, because she comprehends human life with the grasp of genius and can present it with the spell that has been the birthright of only a few great novelists.

DAVE PORTER AT OAK HALL

Or, The Schooldays of an American Boy

By EDWARD STRATEMEYER

Illustrated by H. M. BRETT 12mo Cloth Special Cover Design
Price, $.60

N. B. No other "Dave Porter" book is made in this style

We have decided to make a popular feature of the greatest school story ever written for American boys. "Dave Porter" has every quality to commend him to active, plucky, democratic American youth. He is keen of mind, a fine athlete, full of fun, and true blue in loyalty and integrity every time. He has a tremendous following already and deserves the still bigger one he is going to get by this popular edition.

HEROES OF HISTORY SERIES

A newly grouped collection of standard favorites—the kind that never grow old. In school and public libraries and intelligent homes these books are recognized as outweighing any number of the trashy newer juveniles so much in evidence, and for bright boys and girls they hold a high interest. The pleasing new covers, at the same low price, give them a renewed welcome.

MOTHER GOOSE IN BLACK

Mother Goose Rhymes

Fifty full-page silhouette illustrations by J. F. Goodridge
Oblong 4to, Cloth $.50

No other edition has had so large a sale. As the little ones prefer some black Dinah of a doll to the richest imitation of a lady of fashion, so they prefer this to the highly colored editions in the market. The designs in this volume are useful for shadow pictures, for home dramatic performances, and for instruction in drawing in school or at home.

MOTHER GOOSE IN WHITE

Mother Goose Melodies

Fifty full-page silhouette illustrations by J. F. Goodridge
Oblong 4to Cloth $.50

It is the opposite of "Mother Goose in Black," as the pictures are in white on a black ground. The contents are entirely different, but this book is equally attractive, useful, and original. A general favorite with little folks.
